

Spaghetti Bridge and ASTTBC Featured in Castanet News

ASTTBC was the title sponsor for the Okanagan College Spaghetti Bridge Contest held March 7 at the KLO campus in Kelowna. “It was great to see so many technology enthusiasts participating in the competition,” said ASTTBC Regional Manager, Bruce Stevens. “ASTTBC sponsorship of the event helps us promote Science, Technology, Engineering and Math - STEM.” ASTTBC has been a long time sponsor of this special event with the hope that more youth, parents and teachers will gain a better understanding of the great STEM careers, as well as the technology programs offered at Okanagan College.

“March is National Engineering and Geoscience Month and a great opportunity for ASTTBC to promote technology education and careers,” said ASTTBC CEO John Leech. “Okanagan College does a great job of delivering top quality two year technology programs leading to extraordinary careers.” ASTTBC actively promotes technology careers to all youth, and several years ago launched BC Women in Technology and the First Nations Careers Council to draw attention to young girls and women as well as First Nations.

To read the Castanet ARTICLE