

ASTTBC Supports Tetra's 2014 Gizmo Awards

Gregg Harris (left) receives his Lifetime Achievement Award from ASTTBC's Jason Jung, ASCT, Manager, Member & Program Development, while Duane Geddes (right), Tetra Society Executive Director, looks on.

ASTTBC and APEGBC were Presenting Sponsors of Tetra Society of North America's 2014 Gizmo Awards on May 29 in downtown Vancouver. The Gizmo Awards are a celebration of Tetra's volunteer technicians and engineers who design and build ingenious devices that overcome barriers in the physical world, bringing independence and opportunities to people with disabilities.

Tetra Society is an independent non-profit that provides custom assistive devices to people with physical disabilities. Its volunteers work individually with people with a specific need that cannot be met by commercial aids. Tetra was founded by ASTTBC Honourary Member and current MLA for Vancouver-False Creek Sam Sullivan.

"We really appreciate our relationship with Tetra," said Jason Jung, ASCT, Manager, Member & Program Development, who along with Anne Sharp, Manager, Marketing & Communications, attended the event on behalf of ASTTBC. "The event left me inspired with a great feeling of the power of people and their ability to give of themselves to ensure others are okay," said Jason. "It was a wonderful event."