

ASTTBC Appoints Chief Compliance Officer

The Applied Science Technologists and Technicians of BC (ASTTBC) is pleased to announce the appointment of Ron Hein, ROWP, as the Association's first Chief Compliance Officer (CCO).

Ron is an onsite wastewater professional with over 26 years of experience in onsite wastewater services, education and training, and inspection. He will be responsible for overseeing and managing quality assurance and compliance issues of the association.

Ron joined ASTTBC in 2004 as a Technical Advisor then was quickly assigned to the role of Manager, Onsite Wastewater Registrations. Recognizing his extensive knowledge and experience in criminology, Ron was appointed to the role of Director, Practice & Compliance in 2013 where he was involved with the strategic planning and development of various programs, policies and guidelines from registration to practice within technical and registration groups.

His educational background includes studies from Douglas College, Trinity Western University, British Columbia Institute of Technology, Royal Roads University, and the Justice Institute of BC, with a subject matter focus on criminology, environmental sciences, conflict resolution, compliance, enforcement and investigations.

His commitment to excellence and dedication to public safety will continue to benefit ASTTBC. "We're pleased to appoint Ron Hein to his new role. This change will elevate the presence and role of professional compliance within ASTTBC", states ASTTBC Chief Executive Officer, John Leech, AScT, CAE.
