BC Jobs Plan: Minister Bell Unveils Technology Sector Strategy

The Honorable Pat Bell, Minister of Jobs, Tourism and Innovation has launched the B.C. government's strategy to create and support jobs in the province's fast-growing technology sector.

“Technology is one of eight key sectors we identified in ‘Canada Starts Here: The BC Jobs Plan’, but it’s doubly important in that technology supports all of the other sectors through product and service innovations that allow them to grow and create jobs,” Bell said. “Technology enables growth in all sectors and growth means jobs for B.C. families.”

As jobs in the technology sector continue to grow twice as fast as any other, B.C.'s Technology Strategy predicts by 2014 there will be over 100,000 high-tech jobs supporting British Columbian families.
