

House Inspector Licensing Will be Enhanced: Minister Coleman Meets ASTTBC & Other Stakeholders

Rich Coleman, Minister Responsible for Housing, met with ASTTBC and two other Associations providing certification of house inspectors earlier this week to talk about changes planned for the licensing of house inspectors.

The current Government Regulation places responsibility for licensing with Consumer Protection BC (CPBC) and this will not change; although, new Regulations to be developed over the next 6 months will spell out an expanded role for CPBC according to ASTTBC CEO John Leech.

“We welcome the changes proposed by Minister Coleman as the current situation with four separate certification groups and four different standards does not meet the needs of the consumer.” Leech advised that CPBC will be setting the standards for certification, practice and professional accountability.

Read the Government’s PRESS RELEASE and learn more about the Government’s consultation.