

ASTTBC's Executive Director Makes Top 20!

BC Homes Magazine and the Canadian Home Builder Association (CHBA BC) have released their Top 20 Most Influential People in Residential Construction for 2012 and included on that list is ASTTBC Executive Director, John Leech, ASCT, CAE.

"It is quite an honour to receive recognition from BC Homes magazine" John remarked on being named to the list, he went on to say "The credit is shared with so many at ASTTBC who work tirelessly in support of the professional regulation of technologists, technicians and technical specialists. Many of ASTTBC's 10,000 registrants provide a valuable service to the built environment, including building designers, house inspectors, fire protection technicians, and many technologists and technicians who are involved with design, construction, commissioning, inspection, and testing services."

Leech also commented on ASTTBC's role in advancing careers, "As well, ASTTBC works hard to promote technology education and careers and science and technology in K-12. ASTTBC has been encouraging leaders in BC to adopt a science and technology culture with a solid plan guiding our collective efforts."

ASTTBC Council Member Bob Prasad, ASCT, RTMgr, sent John his congratulations... "Fantastic news and no surprise Mr. Leech being listed as one of BC's Top 20 Most Influential in Residential Construction by BC Homes Magazine. He continues to impress and lead by example. . . "

2012's Top 20 includes leaders, innovators and experts of all kinds who tirelessly work to advance and improve BC's home building and renovation industry.
